Community History

Alamance County, North Carolina

Alamance County was founded in 1849 and the City of Graham was established as the county seat. However, county history pre-dates the American Revolutionary War when, in 1771, local militia prevailed in armed resistance against British taxation at 'The Battle of Alamance'. Today, the site, located approximately 5 miles south of the interstates along NC 62 (Alamance Road), is a state historic site and is open to the public.

Local life and the economy was agriculture based until well after the Civil War when textile manufacturing began to migrate here. Many textile firms set up in Alamance County along the Haw River taking advantage of its water power. The story of life and the textile economy in those early years is provided in a "living textile mill village" (including a textile museum) located in the Glencoe community along the Haw River north of Burlington.

Textiles (and tobacco) grew to become the foundations of the local economy. Burlington Industries was founded here in the early 1900s and, over the next 100 years, became the largest textile company in the world. At the height of the industry's dominance, Alamance County was the "hosiery capital" of the world as most of the area's manufacturers were textile manufacturing or related. However, at the beginning of this century, as the "global economy" became more prevalent, much of the legacy textile industry disappeared including Burlington Industries. However, many other textile firms adapted and changed including another local, family-owned company known as Glen Raven. Glen Raven was founded by the Gant family in 1881 and remains a growing, global, family-owned business today. An early innovation of Glen Raven was panty-hose. Today, one of their signature products is a specialty engineered fabric called 'Sunbrella'.

In the 1830s, to encourage more economic development across the state, the North Carolina state legislature authorized the building of a railroad to cross the state (east-to-west) from Goldsboro to Charlotte. Alamance County leaders worked to get the railroad routed through the county; and, in 1854, a site about halfway along the corridor was chosen for a repair and maintenance facility. That site was called Company Shops which, today, is the City of Burlington. A history of the NC Railroad, Company Shops, and its influence on Alamance County can be seen in a special museum at the Burlington train station.

Another transformative development occurred in the 1940s when Fairchild Industries located an aircraft factory in Burlington. Eventually, that facility was taken over by Western Electric which brought electronics manufacturing and a wave of new people to the area with new skills to help further diversify life and the economy.

As life and the economy in Alamance County was influenced, in its early history, from its location on the river and railroad, its modern life and economic history are influenced by its location on interstates and near airports. Alamance is located in north-central North Carolina halfway between (and under an hour from) two larger metro regions – the famed Research Triangle (Raleigh-Durham-Chapel Hill) to the east and the Piedmont Triad (Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem) to the west. Alamance is connected to both regions by two interstates, 85 & 40, which run concurrently through the county. Each metro also has a major commercial airport connecting Alamance to the nation and the world.

Today, Alamance County enjoys a more diverse economy, which still includes textile manufacturing and agriculture (including several wineries), but also includes advanced manufacturing, healthcare, retail, government, warehousing and distribution, and education. The county's largest private sector employer is LabCorp, one of the largest medical testing companies in the world, which was founded here by a local entrepreneur, Dr. Jim Powell. Elon University and Alamance Regional Medical Center are each undergoing major growth initiatives and the corporate base continues to diversify as more businesses locate in Alamance County.

Proximity to the two neighboring metro areas and a more diversified local economy fueled recent population and housing growth which, in turn, resulted in a surge in new retail development all of which continue to change the life and economy of Alamance County.

Piedmont Triad Area Weather

Summer temperatures vary with cloudiness and shower activity, but are generally mild. Northwesterly winds seldom bring heavy or prolonged winter rain or snow. Seasonal snowfall has a wide range and there have been a few winters with a trace of snow. Snow seldom stays on the ground for more than a few days.

Summer precipitation is largely from thunderstorms, mostly local in character. Damaging storms are infrequent. The highest winds to occur have been associated with thunderstorms and were of brief duration. The occurrence of tornadoes are rare. Hurricanes have produced heavy rainfall here, with limited winds of destructive force. The average first occurrence of frost in the fall is October 27, and the average last occurrence in the spring is April 11.

Licensing & Vehicle Registration

All new residents of North Carolina are required to purchase license plates. The length of time after establishing residence varies depending upon the state from which you have moved. A certificate of insurance must be secured from the insurer and presented with application for license. New residents must have their cars inspected within 10 days after purchase of auto license. Thereafter, inspections are required annually during the same month as the first inspection. Licensed garages and service stations make these inspections.

Business/Industry

For more than 150 years, many companies have found success in Alamance County. The benefits of the Haw River and North Carolina Railroad led to the development of the textile industry. Now a diverse mix of businesses and approximately 300 diverse industries in manufacturing, services, and distribution call Alamance County home. The county's accessible location in North Carolina and the eastern United States makes it a community of choice.

If you are interested in relocating or expanding your company here, you can contact the Alamance Chamber Economic Development division for assistance at 336-228-1338. View a list of the major employers, international firms, and other relevant documents for companies operating in the area by visiting the Economic Development section of the website at alamancechamber.com.

Education

Beginning School or Starting at a New School in the Alamance-Burlington School System:

If you are relocating to Alamance County or if you have a child entering school for the first time, there are a number of things to take care of, including registering your child for school.

In the Alamance-Burlington School System, most students are assigned to and attend their “base school”; that is, the school assigned based on the parent’s or guardian’s home address. To determine your child’s base school, contact a nearby school or call the district’s Map Office at 336-570-6541.

If you plan to build a home or move into another school attendance area within Alamance County prior to December, your child can begin attending the school corresponding to the new address. However, you must present a signed legal purchase contract or lease agreement to the Office of Student Assignment to receive a transfer from the base school zone to the new school zone. (The system does not provide transportation to transfer students). The Office of School Assignment is located at the Alamance-Burlington School System administrative office building at 1712 Vaughn Road, Burlington, NC.

Newcomers and residents who have moved to a new school attendance area in the Alamance-Burlington School System should present the following items when registering a child:

- Copy of the child’s certified birth certificate
- Proof of residence (examples include a purchase agreement or utility bills; driver’s licenses are not accepted)
- Immunization records
- If coming from another school system, a copy of the child’s latest report card and the previous year’s achievement test results are helpful
- If bringing the child’s records is a problem, the new school will contact the child’s previous school and request the records

Child Care in Alamance County

Choosing the right child care provider for your child may be one of the toughest decisions you'll make. There are many choices available to your family. At the Alamance Partnership for Children, a Parent Resource Counselor can help you make the decision that is best for you and your family. They provide information about specific child care facilities, including both Child Care Centers and Family Child Care Homes; help you learn about the child care rules and laws in North Carolina; inform you of other resources in the community; and provide a checklist of what you should look for when you visit a provider center or home. These services are all free and are available in their office, over the phone, through email or by fax.

The Alamance Partnership for Children is a non-profit, Smart Start funded agency. Their vision is that all children arrive at school happy, healthy, and ready for success in school and life.
