

About AYL

The Alamance Youth Leadership Academy (AYLA) is a leadership program of the Alamance Chamber supported by strong partners, including the Elon University Center for Leadership, Alamance-Burlington School System, and Leadership Alamance Alumni.

The goal of the Alamance Youth Leadership Academy (AYLA) is to empower youth through the connections of civic engagement and leadership development for a greater Alamance County.

Founding members identified middle school as a time of critical personal development and an opportunity to engage area seventh and eighth graders in leadership and service. The vision is to inspire and create a foundation for leadership that will follow students into high school and beyond. The program began in the Fall of 2007 with two area middle schools. AYL currently serves 200 seventh and eighth graders in eleven public, independent and charter middle schools in Alamance County.

The model includes a three and a half day summer experience hosted by the Elon University Center for Leadership, school-based chapter meetings that take place during the school year, and quarterly joint events hosted by the Chamber's AYL Advisory Board. Developing and implementing a school improvement project is at the heart of the learning experience.

AYL activities help students gain:

- The ability to identify, develop and exercise leadership skills
- The ability to work in teams
- The confidence and ability to speak well in public
- Problem-solving skills
- Communication skills
- Organization and facilitation skills
- Motivational skills
- Relationships with students from other schools

School Selection

Starting with just two middle schools, the AYLA program has grown to a total of eleven public, independent and charter schools. Schools are added as funding and available space have allowed for additional growth. Schools are chosen through an application process. Participating schools commit to working with the AYLA Advisory Board to create a sustainable program that benefits student participants, their school and the community.

Participating schools are responsible for:

- Providing a staff person who will attend the summer program and oversee school-based meetings, as well as coach students in order for them to learn leadership skills, meeting facilitation and project management
- Selecting students in good standing who represent a cross-section of the student body, have demonstrated the potential to lead and are willing to commit fully to this program
- Collaborating with students to initiate reasonable, well planned programs for change
- Sustaining the programs for at least two years

The Alamance Chamber and AYLA Advisory Board will be responsible for:

- Working with the Elon Center for Leadership to plan and implement joint events and workshops to assist students in the development of leadership skills
- Providing financial support for the summer program and joint activities
- Making available volunteer liaisons to assist school personnel with communication, program management and sustainability

Student participants will be responsible for:

- Attending the summer experience scheduled for the third week in June (rising seventh graders)
- Remaining in good standing with their respective middle schools
- Attending 80% of all meetings
- Participating actively in all projects

Once identified, the participating school will be asked to distribute student applications and select the participants for their chapter. The maximum number is 12 students per grade level beginning with a seventh grade cohort. By the second year, there should be a seventh and an eighth grade cohort - the original group and a new class of seventh graders. The groups can partner or work independently on one or more school projects. Cohorts for independent schools can be a little smaller (7-8 students) based on the size of the class. Student candidates should demonstrate leadership potential, be in good standing with his/her school and commit to participating in all AYLA activities.

Each school is responsible for selecting their school's student participants. Likewise, they determine a structure for their chapter meetings that fits their school schedule and culture. Some schools meet weekly while others meet bi-weekly. Some meet before school, some during the lunch hour while others meet after school or during a designated extracurricular block in the school day.

The chapter focus should be on identifying and completing a school improvement project in partnership with school leadership. During this process students should have the opportunity to:

- Identify and develop personal strengths and skills
- Work as a team
- Plan and execute a project
- Practice organization and facilitation skills
- Learn to solve problems
- Lead meetings
- Speak publicly

While not required, many chapters have organized events and fundraisers to help accomplish large-scale projects. These student-led activities further enhance their leadership and project management skills. Additionally, some chapters have organized and led broader community service projects for their student bodies. Many schools use their AYLA students in other leadership roles including that of student ambassadors.

The School Chapter Advisor

Each school chooses a member of their faculty to serve as the school's AYLA advisor. Schools develop their own model of staff leadership with some schools having a single advisor while other schools choose co-advisors. Co-advisors may work together to facilitate the whole group or choose to divide their responsibilities by grade level. The volunteer advisor(s) commits to:

- Supporting the vision of AYLA
- Coordinating the selection of each new AYLA cohort
- Facilitating collection of student forms for Summer Program
- Overseeing chapter meetings with a commitment to assisting students in the development of their leadership skills and the implementation of their school project
- Attending joint events with their students as field trip chaperones
- Communicating with their chapter liaison to share updates and opportunities for involvement and support from the Advisory Board (see Chapter Liaison description under Advisory Board)

Joint AYLA events also serve as an opportunity for school Chapter Advisors to network, share best practices, and offer guidance to the Advisory Board.

Current AYLA schools include:

- Blessed Sacrament School
- Broadview Middle School
- Burlington Christian Academy
- The Burlington School
- Clover Garden Charter School
- Graham Middle School
- Hawfields Middle School
- Southern Middle School
- Turrentine Middle School
- Woodlawn Middle School
- Western Middle School

Student Selection

Students are selected by their schools through a competitive application process. In the application, students express their interest in becoming a part of AYLA and identify what they can contribute to the group. They also commit to the following:

- Attend the summer experience
- Attend 80% of all regular chapter meetings held at his/her school
- Remain in good standing with the school
- Actively participate in all projects and other student activities including attendance at quarterly events

Students will gain:

- The ability to identify, develop and exercise leadership skills
- Problem-solving skills
- Motivational skills
- Communication skills
- Organizational skills and the ability to lead meetings
- The confidence and ability to speak well in public
- Relationships with other students, including those from other schools
- Knowledge that they have a voice

The AYLA Model and Curriculum

The AYLA program includes:

- A three and a half day summer program for rising seventh graders hosted by the Elon University Center for Leadership
- School-based chapter meetings that take place during the school year facilitated by a school faculty advisor for the purpose of implementing a school improvement project(s)
- Three joint events hosted by the AYLA Advisory Board in conjunction with the Elon University Center for Leadership (These activities take place off campus during the school day. AYLA funds cover the cost of these events including transportation and substitutes for the advisors.)
- An Eighth Grade Capstone Luncheon (Again, all related costs are covered by the Advisory Board.)

The Summer Program

The AYLA experience begins with participation by the rising seventh graders in a summer program hosted on the Elon University campus by the Elon University Center for Leadership. (See a sample summer program schedule in the back of this section.) Typically held the third week in June, the program begins on Sunday evening and ends mid-day on Wednesday. Typical program hours are Sunday from 2:30 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.; Monday and Tuesday from 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.; and Wednesday from 8:00 a.m. - 11:30 a.m. Directed by Center for Leadership staff with facilitation provided by Elon University students, AYLA students participate in large and small group sessions. Activities include:

- Identification of leadership styles
- A team building challenge course
- The FISH! Philosophy of motivating your team and your peers
- Character education focusing on courage, perseverance, respect, kindness, self-discipline and integrity
- Faculty presentations on time management, presentation skills, and respecting diversity
- The initial development of ideas for a school improvement project

Elon students facilitators are chosen through an application and interview process, undergo a background check and are provided with four hours of intensive training prior to the event. These students serve as inspiring and energetic role models!

School-based Chapter Meetings

Each school determines a structure for their chapter meetings that fits their school schedule and culture. Some schools meet weekly while others meet bi-weekly. Some meet before school, some during the lunch hour while others meet after school or during a designated extracurricular block in the school day.

The chapter focus should be on identifying and completing a school improvement project in partnership with school leadership. During this process students should have the opportunity to:

- Identify and develop personal strengths and skills
- Work as a team
- Plan and execute a project
- Practice organization and facilitation skills
- Learn to solve problems
- Lead meetings
- Speak publicly

While not required, many chapters have organized events and fundraisers to help accomplish large-scale projects. These student-led activities further enhance their leadership and project management skills. Additionally, some chapters have organized and led broader community service projects for their student bodies. Many schools use their AYLA students in other leadership roles including that of student ambassadors.

See the section on school selection for a description of the role of the School Advisor.

Joint AYLA Events

Three times a year, the AYLA Advisory Board in conjunction with the Elon University Center for Leadership, hosts joint events inviting every AYLA chapter to participate. The invitation extends to the seventh and eighth grade cohorts. The purpose of these events is to:

- Provide workshops that help students as they continue to develop skills needed for effective leadership and project development
- Provide a forum for the exchange of ideas among AYLA student leaders and AYLA faculty advisors
- Build relationships among students from across Alamance County
- Introduce students to current community leaders
- Receive regular updates regarding school projects

These events are held on regular school days with permission of school administration. They are held at various sites in the community based on the ability to find a large space and sufficient breakout rooms to accommodate an event that includes 180+ participants. The events are typically held from 9:00 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. to accommodate public school bus routes. The events are provided at no cost to the AYLA chapters. The AYLA Advisory Board through the Alamance Chamber provides lunch and covers the cost of all materials for each session and reimburses schools for the cost of bus transportation and substitute teachers. For reimbursement of these expenses, invoices should be submitted to:

Alamance Chamber
Attn: Laura Fehlhafer
PO Box 450
Burlington, NC 27216

Workshop topics are designed to help students develop skills for project implementation and personal success. Workshops are differentiated between seventh and eighth graders. This two-year curriculum is designed to help students build skills and cover a broad range of topics. Also incorporated into these events is the opportunity to meet community leaders who share their professional experiences and leadership lessons.

These events are planned and organized in partnership with the Elon University Center for Leadership and their student Isabella Cannon Leadership Fellows.* This partnership gives this selective group of university students a “lab” experience to plan and execute their own leadership project. AYLAs benefit from the experiences and activities these advanced student leaders have gained and from the passion and energy they bring to the table. It is a community Win-Win!

*The Purpose of the Elon University Center for Leadership

Elon students will graduate with strong self-efficacy, the desire and ability to work collaboratively within diverse communities of people, as well as have the confidence and competence to put innovative ideas into action for positive change.

The curriculum includes the following topics:

- Goal Setting
- Event and Project Management
- Budgeting and Fundraising
- Marketing and Media – Telling your AYLA Story
- Public Speaking
- Listening
- Problem-solving
- Self-knowledge
- Characteristics of a Good Leader
- Your Role as a School Leader
- Great Leaders as Great Communicators
- Fairness and Justice
- The Courage to Speak Out
- Preparing for High School and Beyond

These events also serve as an opportunity for Chapter Advisors to network, share best practices, and offer guidance to the Advisory Board.

The Eighth Grade Capstone Luncheon

A fun event that has become a tradition that the schools and community anticipate is the Eighth Grade Capstone Luncheon. Held in the Spring, this event celebrates the commitment of the eighth graders to the AYLA program and offers some unique experiences that will serve them well during their high school journey. Held at the Alamance Country Club, AYLA students learn and sharpen business and table etiquette skills; practice social conversation skills including introductions, meeting new people, and appropriate topics of conversation; creating a first résumé; and techniques for a successful interview. Distinguished community leaders are invited to join them for lunch giving the students an opportunity to practice the skills they have just learned. Community leaders look forward to this opportunity to have lunch with students and to hear what is on their minds. Everyone leaves smiling.

Program Outcomes

See the attached self-evaluation form used with students at the beginning and end of their AYLA experience. This self-evaluation helps us define important opportunities for learning and expected growth and helps us determine if we are helping students reach those benchmarks.
